POBTET.

From the Knickerbocker for September. THE PRINTER.

He stood there alone at that shadowy hour, By the swinging lamp dimly burning; All silent within, save the ticking type, All without, save the night-watch turning; And heavily echoed the solemn sound, As slowly he paced o'er the frozen ground.

And dark were the monsions so lately that shone, With the joy of leativity gleaming, And hearts that were heating in sympathy then, Were now living it o'er in their dreaming I Yet the Parkyen still worked at his lonely post, As slowly he gathered itis mighty host.

And there lay the merchant all pillowed in down, And building bright hopes for the morrow, Nor dreamed he that Fale was then we aving a wand That would bring to him fear and sort ow ! Yet the Prantin was there in his shanewy room.

And he set in his frame-work that rich men's door The young wife was aleeping, who lately had bound The ties that death only can sever; And dreaming she started, yet woke with a smile,

And there lay the statesman, whose feverish brow And restless, the pillow was pressing, For he lelt through the shadowy mist of his dream His lattiest hopes now possessing ; Yet the Pauxen worked on unid silence and gloom And dug for Ambition its lowhest tomb.

And slowly that workman went gathering up His budget of grief and of gladness;
A wreath for the noble, a grave for the low,
For the happy, a cup full of sadness;
Strange suries of wonder, to enchant the car,

To many a bearer of surrow; It shall go like the wild and wandering air, For life and its changes are impressed there.

To Mr. Brown, Chemist, Hoston.

I certify that my wite has been afflicted with a very bad buner on her face, and at her stomatch, for fifteen years past. After using various medicines recommended for her complaints with little or no ben-fit, she commenced using, by the advice of Mr. Edward Mason, Apathecary, your Sarsapartila and To-mato Bitters, not she is now in better health than she has le-fore enjoyed for the last fifteen years; and I would cheerfolly, recommend to all and every one who is afflicted with any of the complaints which this medicine is recommended for, to use it in reference to any article now in use.
Yours, Respectfully,

Falmouth, May 21, 4844. J. B. LEACH.
